

Comments re: FCC's new broadcast service known as Low Power FM (LPFM):

I would like to register the following comments as they relate to the FCC's proposed expansion of LPFM stations:

1. I listen primarily to K-LOVE which is heavily broadcasted over FM translator stations. I do not want to see FM translator stations forced off the air as a result of the increased priority given to LPFM's. K-LOVE serves a great need in my life personally, my family's life and in the lives of many throughout my community and the numerous communities that are served with their broadcast. A positive message, encouraging words, and commercial free listening all add up to a premier and preferred radio experience.
2. If K-LOVE were replaced by one or more LPFM stations, the impact would be detrimental to many communities as mentioned above. Our country needs to have a positive alternative to the daily, non-stop garbage of Howard Stern and the like.
3. K-LOVE is providing a wholesome message, high moral values, great music, talented artists, and encouraging words, all of which serve the community in ways that create citizens who care more deeply about their fellow man, who honor traditional values, and who chose to promote positive messages and role models for not just the youth of our society, but for everyone who is able to hear.
